

The Choir of 70 Prophets: Dream

by David Michael, info@glentivar.org

The Dream

A dream on January 2, 2008 occurred in the surroundings of a large gym. I was the conductor of a 70 person choir (mostly youth) that were drawn from all walks of life - many appeared to be inner city kids representing all ethnicities. The choir was standing on risers as they were taught. None of them seemed to have a trained musical background. I began by teaching scales (so-fa), then rhythm, then articulation, dynamics, harmony and how to follow the conductor.

Simple silly phrases were used to teach music such as "I am going to the store" sung to different melodies, harmonies and rhythms. During the training, bystanders at the other end of the gym were making noise and the training stopped briefly as they were ushered from the gym.

As the session progressed, the response of the choir was such that when we came to the cut-off of a piece and as the voices stopped immediately as one, the gym echoed the last note with amazing clarity and duration.

It was as if the room joined in song with the sound of the voices (voices only - no instruments). It seemed as if the gym was sentient (alive) and became a part of the choir and sang the same song in 'sympathetic resonance'.

Interpretation

The understanding of this dream took me a few days since I am a trained choirmaster and such a dream topic comes with the territory. However, as it turns out the Holy Spirit had a deeper meaning as follows.

The choir represents the singing-prophets that the Holy Spirit will raise up in these last days. The Conductor is the teacher that trains the prophets as in the manner of the School of the Prophets. The School of the Prophets might also be identified as the Order of Melchizedek to which Y'Shua was identified by St. Paul.

The silly phrases used to teach music represent the silly activities that will be employed by the teacher to seek to release the prophetic gifts within each student. The bystanders are the rebellious Church that are caught up in various religious distractions and will be removed from among the prophets in due time.

The gym represents nature and nature's forces that are tuned by Creator God to resonate and sing along with the songs of the prophets. The manner in which nature is engaged is through music. I will say this again, the manner in which nature is engaged is literally through music - the song of the voice. This engagement is only possible when the choir of the prophets becomes a single and unified voice - without division.

The 70 persons in the choir represent the number of completeness needed to manage the forces of nature in the battle against evil. The dream implies the manner by which the people of YHWH will be protected from evil. However, the reader should also understand that some of the choir will be called to give their lives as martyrs for the sake of the Kingdom of God as a testimony against evil.

The Lord God in Y'Shua is looking for and is now training 70 singing-prophets for these last days to manage nature's forces in the future battles against evil.