

Ship of 12 Masts: Dream

by David Michael, info@glentivar.org

The Dream

In a dream I had on the 29th of December in 2011, I saw a massive ship - the largest sailing vessel ever built and it had 12 masts. It was modern in design with a steel hull with twelve 19th century styled square rigged masts with multiple massive sails stacked on each mast.

The ship below is similar to what I saw except it has only 7 masts. Just imagine the ship below being twice as big with 5 more masts added. I saw scores of men in the sails setting the sails into the wind. The ship was moving very quickly through a calm sea.

12 Christian Tribes

Upon awakening, I prayed and was told that the 12 masts are 12 groups of the faithful that will be raised up for keeping the ship on course. 12 sets of sails represent 12 Apostolic denominations or historic streams of 'faith and practice'.

These are not the main stream denominations who are now going into perdition but the remnant from these historic churches who remain faithful to YHWH and are faithful to true orthodoxy. I saw scores of men/sailors up in the sails setting them into the wind.

I was shown they were bishops and ministers who were guiding the ship with the sails. The wind is the Holy Spirit that powers the ship and these elders were chosen because they were sensitive to the wind of the Holy Spirit and turned the ship's sails into the wind to gain maximum power from the wind to move forward through any sea.

The ship appears to be a gathering place for all those who remain faithful to true orthodoxy (right teaching).

Remnant Churches

I believe the ship represents the remnant of those of the historic Church who from the beginning have embraced the faith of Y'Shua and the Holy Apostles. This I believe is a new direction for the Church and how unity may occur before the return of Messiah Jesus. In seeking to enable this dream to be fulfilled, I continue to work with FOCUS as a gathering place for the Historic and sometimes remnant Orthodox and Catholic Churches.

Now in September, 2015, I have resigned from any affiliation with FOCUS. I have come to understand this ship is the remnant of the true believers who have separated themselves from all forms of religion and only live to honor Y'Shua (Jesus) and not a denomination.
