

Death WayKeeper, WayFarers and WayStations

Dream of Abbot David Michael

Civil War

In the night of July 8th, 2022, I found myself back in the era of the American Civil War near a major battle field. In this dream, I was apparently the owner of a large plantation house near one of the major battle fields like Gettysburg where 10's of thousands died in a single day. I was living in this estate mansion and had people coming to me in terror with spiritual events happening in the house and people disappearing or dying without any reason.

I seemed to live alone in a large bedroom of this house and had a room next door that was newly decorated as an office with very expensive new civil war period furniture. I remember walking people through this room to show them what life should be like in comfort and peace for them during this time of war. It was more of a show case room rather than a room used as an office. I saw other people in the house, sometimes hiding in corners in fear crying and pleading for someone to provide protection from the evil of this house. I wondered what was happening as I was not confronted by any evil spirits.

I was awakened one morning by a woman screaming. I quickly found her and asked her what she was afraid of. She told me that house was evil and she was being pursued by evil spirits that wanted to kill her and drag her into a hell pit. She told me there was an evil pit near the grand entrance to the house just inside the front door. I told her to show me and she took me to this place.

What should have been a landing for the front entrance was an inter-dimensional 8' round hole as a pit that went deep into the earth. The smokey smell of sulfur that came from this hell pit was overwhelming. As I looked down, I would get glimpses of a winged spirit in this pit moving about in the swirling smoke. It did not seem like an angel but more like a demon or fallen angel. Others in the house started to gather to watch.

WayKeeper Confronted

I stretched out my hand over the pit and commended him or it to come up to the top. When he surfaced, he identified himself as the Waykeeper of this Waystation hell pit that was a place for the transition of recently departed souls.

My first impression was there were perhaps millions of these WayStations located all over the world set up as needed. Departed souls arrived from battle fields and large population deaths and were held for initial separation of the good souls from the evil ones.

The WayKeeper then told me the WayFarers were no longer coming to the WayStation to transport the good souls to a more heavenly place that might be considered Paradise. He further stated the WayStation cannot house both good and evil souls so he began to attack the living to bring attention to this problem. He implied he did not have access to Paradise or heaven himself to seek a remedy.

He then asked me to go to heaven and ask that the WayFarers begin coming again to take the good souls to God. I told him I would do this and that he needed to stop attacking the living. He seemed content with this and the attacking of the living ceased.

Upon Partial Awakening

As I was awakening, I said to God, "What is this? There is nothing in the bible that identifies such a place." I then remembered the book of Enoch where such places were described. I further realized that this transition of souls is a somewhat fragile system that needs constant management in justice. I then also remembered the town graveyard in Bowie AZ is located directly next door to the south of me. I see it out me window daily.

Perhaps the unused Civil War office with new furniture was my way of trying to live isolated from the real world of the spirit in avoiding dealing with death and judgment? It became unavoidably evident I needed to become involved in this transition event as we approach the end times by this dream.

The gatekeeper of Tartarus in the book of Enoch is identified as Uriel the fire angel whom I have meet but this Waykeeper was not him. This pit was an inter-dimensional temporary hell located in the bowels of the earth. The bible says in the last days, the church will judge angels regarding their fealty to God or to Lucifer the fallen one. This angel although not a holy angel seemed to want to redeem himself by justly serving as the WayKeeper for this hell pit.
